

Dora has been working in the design and print industry for over 35 years. She moved to Adelaide to expand her skills and knowledge in commercial printing and bookwork, after completing an apprenticeship at The Border Watch newspaper in Mount Gambier.

Dora holds a great passion for helping others realise their dreams, particularly those wishing to become self-publishers. In helping people to self-publish, Dora meets personalities from many walks of life, with interesting stories to share, whether it be fact or fiction, poetry or education. She enjoys helping authors see years of research and writing come to fruition.

Her friendly, positive and can-do attitude is a key trait that makes Dora a truly valued employee at Openbook Howden.

Outside of the office, Dora likes to put on her dancing shoes and go ballroom dancing with her partner Rod. Recently, Dora & Rod started up Dancebeat Social Ballroom – Just for fun, where lovers of New Vogue and Modern Ballroom dance can go to enjoy a social evening.

She also enjoys camping, walking and cycling.

Testimonial

“Dora Stewart and her team impressed me no end with their attention to detail and proactive approach when dealing with a number of challenges in what was an anything but off-the-shelf product we needed. As well as meeting the critical deadline with their usual efficiency and continued good humour, from start to finish they have been without equal.

Thanks again.”
